The wild camel was listed in 2007 as the eighth most endangered large mammal in the world and confirmed in 2008 as a new and separate species. The WCPF has established with the Chinese government the 155,000 square kilometre Lop Nur Wild Camel National Nature Reserve in the Gobi desert. The aim of the Reserve is to protect the wild camel and its unique habitat. In Mongolia, the WCPF has also established a successful captive wild Bactrian camel breeding programme. Jane Goodall DBE is the Life Patron of the WCPF. You can support the work of the WCPF by becoming a member. Books, T-shirts, postcards, camel prints and a DVD are available.
